METHODOLOGY: IOM's Displacement Tracking Matrix is a comprehensive system to analyse and disseminate information to better understand the movements and needs of Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs) in Burundi. The baseline assessment aims at providing information on the stock (presence) by colline of IDPs which are categorized in three groups: Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs), IDPs who returned to their colline of origin but not their home and returnees from abroad who still live in displacement. The baseline assessment also collects information on the cause of displacement and the type of shelter hosting IDPs. Data collection is conducted four times per year by trained Burundian Red Cross volunteers operating at all administrative levels: provinces, communes and collines.

¹ Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs): are Burundian nationals who have been forced to flee or forced leave their home or their usual place of residence, in particular as a result of armed conflict, situations of violence widespread, of human rights violations or of natural or man-made disasters or to avoid their effects, and which have not crossed the internationally recognized borders of a State. For the purpose of DTM only IDPs displaced since 2013 or later are considered IDPs.

² IDPs who returned to their colline of origin: Burundian nationals who had been displaced within the country in a different locality than the one they used to live in and have since returned to their colline of origin but not to their habitual residence (home).

³ IDP returnees from abroad: Burundian nationals who had been displaced outside the country and have since returned (spontaneously or assisted) to Burundi but continue being in displacement (because their houses were destroyed or for other reasons).
