

Hargeysa, Borama and Zeylac districts are growing urban areas in Somaliland, and over the past few years become host to households and individuals that have been displaced as a result of conflict, insecurity or drought. Hargeisa district has the most sites, many of which (70%) are recently established (less than 3 months and 6 months). In Borama, more than half (56%) of the sites were established more than one year ago whereas in Zeylac all the sites were established more than a year ago. The sites in Hargeisa are disbursed around the district, whereas in Borama and Zeylac, clustered around primary roads.
