16 October 2015

EU announces it will give Turkey 3 billion EUR in aid and will fast-track approval of visas to Europe for Turkish citizens in exchange for increased controls on the flow of migration from the Middle East to Europe, and taking back migrants whose asylum applications have not been granted.

EU Leaders agree on 17-point plan of action on the Western Balkans Migration Route. This includes Point 14: "Reconfirming the principle of refusing entry to third country nationals who do not confirm a wish to apply for international protection (in line with international and EU refugee law and subject to prior non-refoulement and proportionality checks)," which is thought to have inspired FYR of Macedonia to close its borders to any migrants not of Syrian, Afghan, or Iraqi nationality.

03 December 2015

Pakistan refuses to allow 30 deported Pakistanis to disembark plane from Athens. Voluntary returns and deportations to Pakistan are suspended

10 December 2015

The European Commission begins legal action against Greece, Croatia and Italy for failing to correctly register migrants. It also launches an infringement case against Hungary over its asylum legislation. It says the three failed to implement the Eurodac Regulation, which involves fingerprinting asylum seekers and registering the data within 72 hours.

11 February 2016

NATO sends naval patrols and air surveillance in order to deter smugglers in the Mediterranean Sea, as well as to gather intelligence and monitor migrant flow alongside Greek and Turkish coast guards.

18 February 2016

The chiefs of the police services in Austria, Croatia, FYR of Macedonia, Serbia and Slovenia announced a joint agreement to profile and register migrants and refugees at the Macedonian – Greek border and organize transport from said border to Austria of selected migrants and refugees.

7 March 2016

European leaders reached a tentative agreement with Ankara on the migrant and refugee crisis – the mechanism described as "one in, one out" would be that for every Syrian returned to Turkey from Greece, the EU would then resettle one Syrian from Turkey.

18 March 2016

European Union and Turkey signed an agreement which outlines the plan to end irregular migration flows from Turkey to Europe.

EU Turkey Agreement Overview

On March 18, the European Union and Turkey have agreed on a plan to end irregular migration flows from Turkey to the EU.

The agreement states that:

- From the 20th of March, all persons who do not have a right to international protection in Greece will be returned to Turkey, this action will be based on the Readmission Agreement from 2002 signed between the countries. From the 1st of June the agreement between the EU and Turkey will enter into force and that will be the basis of returns between Greece and Turkey from that point on.
- There will be no mass returns, each individual arriving on Greek shores and applies for asylum will go through an expedited procedure. Those who do not apply for asylum or whose applications were considered unfounded or inadmissible in accordance with the Asylum Procedures Directive will be returned to Turkey.
- In order to create a smooth process, Turkey and Greece as well as the EU institutions and agencies will take all the necessary steps and agree on any necessary bilateral agreements including the presence of Turkish officials on Greek islands and vice versa as of 20 March 2016 in order to ensure the liaison and a better functioning of the return mechanism.
- Member States declare their readiness to provide with a short notice, if needed, border guards, asylum experts, interpreters etc. to Greece.
- The Commission will coordinate all necessary support for Greece, under the EU-Turkey Agreement, and will develop an operational plan.
- The resettlement of Syrians will go under a 1:1 mechanism. Priority will be given to the Syrians who have not previously entered or tried to enter the EU irregularly. The EU will take into account the UN Vulnerability Criteria during the selection process.
- The EU Member States and agencies will accelerate relocation procedures from Greece, that way in the next month a total of 6,000 relocations should be achieved. By mid-May 2016 a minimum of 20,000 relocations should be completed.
- The European Council reaffirmed its support to Jordan and Lebanon. It calls for a better coordination with the Western Balkan states in tackling the migration crisis.

The European Council calls for measures to deter the smuggling of migrants in the EU. The whole EU-Turkey Agreement factsheet is available here.

3. Bulgaria

Background and latest figures

From the start of 2016 to 31 March 2016, Bulgarian authorities apprehended a total of 1,195 migrants and refugees entering the country irregularly from the land borders with Turkey. The most prominent nationalities in descending order were Iraqis, Syrians, Afghans and Pakistanis. The vast majority, 75%, were apprehended on irregular land borders, while only 25% were apprehended on border checkpoints. In addition, 379 migrants and refugees have been apprehended inside country between the reporting period up to 31 March. At the moment, despite the closure of the borders of the fYR of Macedonia and Serbia there is no redirection of the migration flows to Bulgaria and especially near the border with Greece.

Unlike other Balkan states, Bulgaria does not have a policy to facilitate the migration flow to Western Europe. Therefore, numbers from Bulgaria are not of registered arrivals but rather of apprehensions by the Bulgarian authorities of irregular migrants on entry, within the country, and on exit. This makes dating the exact entry of arrivals difficult, as someone apprehended in 2016 might have entered the country in 2015. As such, IOM has decided to account for flows into the country in the following manner: The figure for arrivals from 01 Jan 2016 – 25 Feb 2016 includes only apprehensions on entry. Only apprehensions on entry from the Turkish-Bulgarian border are counted. The figure for arrivals from 25 Feb 2016 – 31 March 2016 includes only apprehensions on entry and in country. The figure for arrivals from 01 April 2016 – will include all three locations: entry, in country, and on exit.

Cumulative arrivals (equal to registered apprehensions) by reporting date in Bulgaria*

 Migrants and refugees arriving in Bulgaria through Greece are not taken into account since they have already been counted in the arrivals in Greece. 138 migrants have been apprehended by the Bulgarian authorities between 1 January and 31 March 2016 when entering the Bulgaria-Greece green border.*

Currently (March 31) all six Centres run by SAR are accommodating 705 migrants and refugees. The majority of accommodated migrants and refugees are Afghan, Syrian and Iraqi nationals.

Apart from the aforementioned centres, there are also two closed reception centres run by the Ministry of Interior, one in Lubimets and one in Sofia with a total capacity of 940 and currently accommodating 267 (March 31) migrants and refugees. Upon apprehension at green border with Turkey, some migrants are transported to these centres.

One open reception centres located in Elhovo and is being under the authority of the Bulgarian Border Police. This is the first transit point for migrants who are apprehended illegally crossing the green border with Turkey. From Elhovo, migrants and refugees are transported to SAR Centres in Sofia, Harmanli and Pastrogor.

The main entry points between Bulgaria and Turkey are border checkpoints Kapitan Andreevo, Lesovo and Malko Tarnovo. Migrants and refugees who are coming from Greece mostly use green areas near Kulata-Promahon checkpoint or available routes in Petrich region. Most migrants and refugees enter Bulgaria from green border on foot. Those coming from border checkpoints usually enter by hiding in buses or other vehicles. Undetected migrants continue their journey via taxis and private transportation to external borders or to big cities to find a means of onward transportation out of the country. However, 838 migrants and refugees were apprehended inside country from January 1 until March 31, with 118 being apprehended during this reporting period (March 24-31).

Key Findings and Advanced Notifications

From 01 January 2016 to 6 April 2016, a total of 6,986 migrants and refugees were registered arriving in Hungary. Due to the barbed-wire fence in place along the Serbian and Croatian borders, there have been reduced numbers of arrivals since 17 October 2015. However, during the months of February and March there has been a steady increase in all registered arrivals through the border with Serbia. From 31 March to 6 April 2016, 716 new arrivals were registered by the authorities, slightly down from 1,016 last week, but still a significant increase from 672 two weeks ago. The most common nationalities in descending order are: Afghans, Pakistanis, and Iranians.

04 April—The Hungarian army says it is reinforcing parts the fence built on the southern border with Serbia meant to stop migrants from entering. The army says it is complying with a request by the interior ministry due to the increased number of migrants being caught near the border. Read more here

Known entry points

The border in Hungary has been officially closed since September 2015 with the completion of the fence. The migrants can cross the border only through the official crossing transit points of Tompa and Roszke on the border with Serbia. In February and March the number of migrants and refugees crossing the border through these two transit points has increased steadily to an average of 100 a day, compared to the months of September– January when no more than 5-10 daily arrivals were reported.

Apart from occasional arrivals through Romania, there are no indicators that the route could have changed following the official closure of the Western Balkans route.

Known entry points: Serbian border-Röske and Tompa

Accommodation Facilities and Border Crossing Points

11. Spain

Spain has been one of the main entry points to Europe for the past decades, in particular through the two North African enclaves of Ceuta and Melilla. Until 2013, the large majority of migrants and refugees using the western Mediterranean route was composed of nationals from African countries. However, this trend has progressively changed in 2014 when Syrian nationals comprised 30% of all registered arrivals to Ceuta and Melilla.

In its annual report on irregular migration dated May 2015, the Ministry of Interior of Spain indicates that out of the 7,485 migrants and refugees who entered Ceuta and Melilla in 2014 (representing an increase of 77% in comparison with 2013), 3,305 (44%) were coming from Syria. See full presentation here.

Numbers: the number of migrants who entered Spain in 2015 remains unclear. IOM Spain indicates that, 3,845 migrants entered the country, up to 20 October 2015. 2016 figures are unavailable. As of April 2016, the total number of migrants and refugees arriving to Spain is 1,399. Out of these, 751 arrivals were registered on the land border and 648 are registered as arrivals by sea. At the time of writing this report, no information was available regarding demographics.

Main known entry points:

Known entry points by air—Barajas and El Prat airports. The majority of migrants obtain a tourist visa through Madrid and Barcelona and enter regularly through Barajas airport, then overstaying their visa

Known entry points by land—Melilla and Ceuta

Known entry points by sea—Canary Islands and Balearics

12. Turkey

Background and latest figures

In Turkey the systems for thorough data collection have not yet been established, with the only available information being provided by the Turkish Coast Guard. As of 6 April 2016, The Turkish Coast Guard had apprehended 23,147 irregular migrants and had registered 173 fatalities for 2016. The breakdown by month of the apprehensions is below. These figures only include those apprehended and rescued by the Coast Guard; actual numbers of migrants and refugees departing Turkey by sea are in fact much higher than this.

As per IOM staff, officials from the Turkish Directorate General for Migration Management arrived to the Greek Islands to observe the implementation of the Agreement between Turkey and the European Union (March 18). Specifically, six of them will operate on Chios, eight on Lesbos, five on Samos, three on Leros and three on Kos.

4 April 2016- 202 migrants, composed mostly of Afghans, Pakistanis, Indians, Bangladeshis and Sri Lankans—were readmitted from Lesbos and Chios islands of Greece to Dikili with the help of the Turkish Coast Guard (TCG). Regarding gender composition, the vast majority were male including a small yet, acknowledgeable number of families. Once in reception area in Dikili, finger prints are taken—taking up to two hours—and consequently, non-Syrians are transported to a removal centre in Kırklareli by bus (cite ASAM). The two Syrians among this group were transported to Osmaniye Düziçi Camp in order to be pre-registered to the ends of benefiting from medical services and will be fully registered one month later.

Thus far, ASAM is the only NGO with access to the readmission point in Dikili, where they are providing food and non-food items such as clothing. Doctors Worldwide has recently established a clinic for migrants in Izmir but it is not yet operational. They have said that their mobile medical team is available to provide remote support if it is needed. As no international organizations are present in the readmission point as of now, migrants in need are taken to hospital via ambulance.

An alternative location for re-admission of migrants from Greece is being prepared at Çeşme Ulusoy port. Currently IOM Izmir is in close contact with TCG Çeşme and further details on IOM's potential assistance in readmission procedures will be discussed with the local authorities.

Also on 4 April, 19 migrants and refugees were apprehended at sea by the TCG and were provided clothing by local volunteers at the Dikili port. Usually, the migrants and refugees are taken to the sports hall in Dikili but in the face of rising tensions with the host population, they were transported to Ayvalık. Regarding these tensions, the host community has begun protesting the readmission of migrants to Dikili. This has been affecting not only the migrants and refugees but also the local volunteers, who have expressed frustration and have expressed interest in suspending support.

Russia

Of the 5,440 migrants and refugees who entered Norway from Russia in 2015, it remains unknown how many of these came to Russia from their countries of origin in the last year, and how many had previously entered Russia by plane with tourist, business, or transit visas. To date, establishing a mechanism to distinguish these groups has proved challenging. According to data IOM Moscow was able to collect from various experts and sources, in 2015 there were an estimated 12,000 Syrians in Russia. Of these, approximately 5,000 are considered members of the diaspora who have been legally residing in Russia for some time and have business interests in the country.

The below tables are official figures provided by the Russian government entity responsible for migration, the Russian Federal Migration Service (RFMS). As of 04 February 2016, Russia had registered the following numbers of Afghans, Syrians, Iraqis, and Pakistanis with a temporary legal status in Russia (work or tourist visas). Information on when these migrants and refugees first entered Russia was not available at time of writing. Previous reports of an estimated 12,000 Syrians living in Russia included both these temporary migrants and refugees, as well as those who have lived long enough in Russia to obtain citizenship:

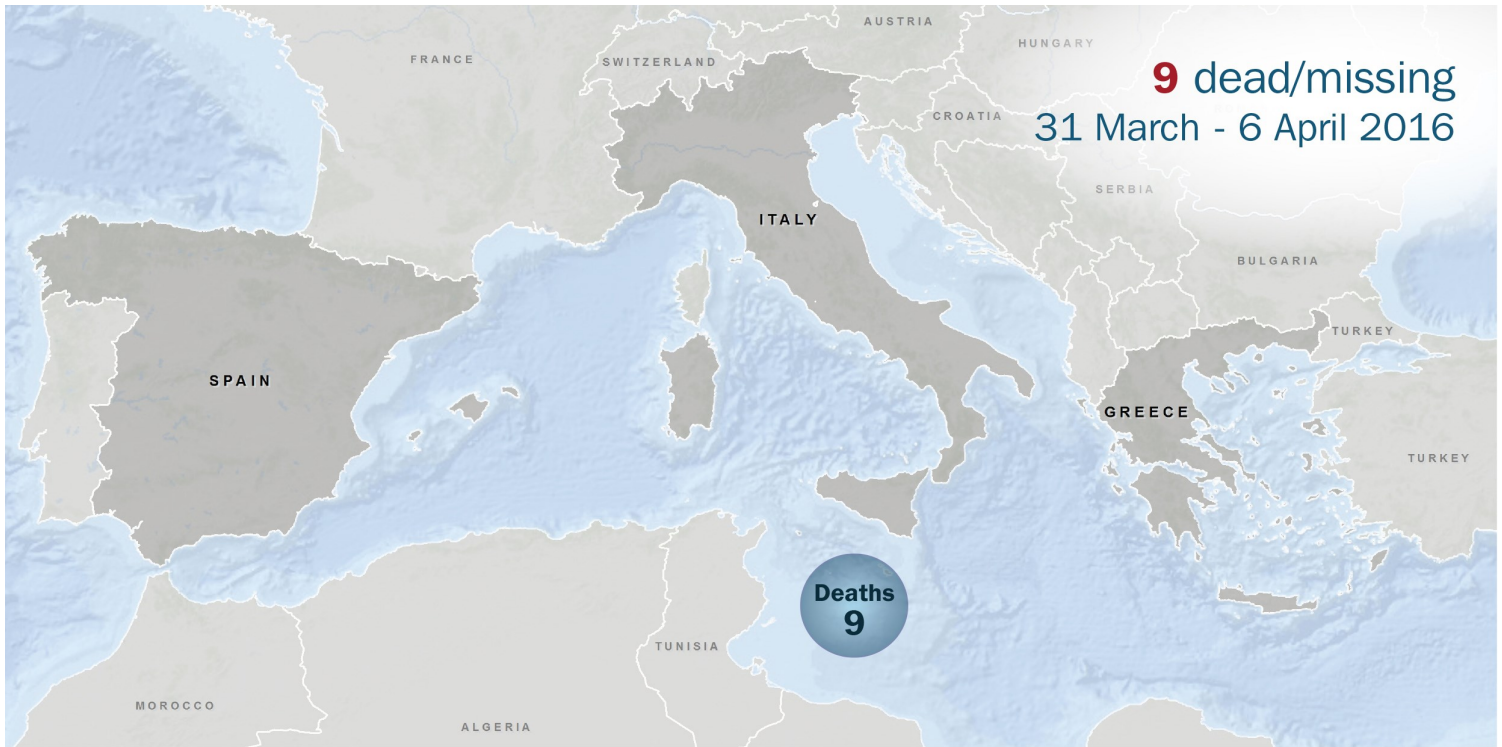

- 7,958 Afghan nationals
- 7,096 Syrian nationals
- 4,960 Iraqi nationals

15. Missing Migrants: Fatalities and Missing Persons

Mediterranean fatalities by month 2014 - 2016

16. Early Warning Information Sharing Network (EWIS)

Over the course of 2015 the Western Balkans route witnessed a sharp increase in numbers of mixed migration flows, most of which were transiting through Greece, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Serbia, Hungary, and Croatia. These flows encompass refugees, as well as a wide range of vulnerable migrants, undocumented persons, unaccompanied and separated children, with the majority facing serious protection concerns. With up to 10,000 migrants crossing the border between Greece and the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, and between the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and Serbia on a daily basis during July and August 2015, it became critical to ensure the real-time provision of information on these flows, in order to ensure that relevant governmental agencies and humanitarian actors within these countries had adequate responses in place to address the basic needs of migrants.

To this end, IOM established an informal network between IOM's field staff and relevant national authorities, through which the Organization has been able to provide basic information concerning the flows to those actors awaiting migrants at the next entry/transit/exit point along the route (example below).

Sent: 08:52 18/02/2016

Today 1,379 migrants
expected to arrive in Athens
between 06:15 and 09:40

The first group is expected on GR/
MK border after 19:00

Shared with:

IOM Greece; IOM Serbia; IOM Field Assistants in Kumanovo (the fYR of Macedonia); IOM Western Balkans; the fYR of Macedonia border police.

The Network is able to operate 24/7 thanks to IOM's continuous staff presence in key areas along the route. In addition, important notifications regarding changes in national laws and border policies which could affect the volume of flows is also shared, to allow more long-term response preparation.

The information shared by IOM enables the coordinated management of mixed migration flows by the border police and other relevant national authorities. The Network also assists the targeted delivery of emergency assistance to the maximum number of beneficiaries, avoiding duplications and ensuring cost effectiveness for all humanitarian actors present on the route. Furthermore, the Network serves as an early warning system to monitor possible changes in the routes taken by migrants to cross the Western Balkans, allowing governments and humanitarian actors to react promptly and ensure adequate assistance to those arriving at their borders.

The Early Warning Information Sharing Network was initially launched with the support of the IOM Emergency Fund in August 2015 and included the route from affected Greek islands to the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and Serbia. Over subsequent months the Network has positioned IOM as the source of reliable and up to date information, and has proved an indispensable resource to government and humanitarian actors. Its flexible design in the planning phase has allowed it to grow over time to incorporate other key countries such as Hungary and Croatia which became affected in September, and Kosovo (SCR 1244), Montenegro, and Bosnia and Herzegovina which could be affected by the possible changes of routes used by the migrants. This second phase is supported by the Swiss State Secretariat for Migration. This project is managed by IOM in the Western Balkans and feeds into many of DTM's activities, including the collection of data that goes into

17. Contingency Countries

Albania

Background

Albania has not been affected by Mediterranean migration flows due to various reasons, including its geographical position. Nevertheless, Albania remains an important “contingency” country which might see an increase in flows if the route changes. The modest figures are not of registered arrivals but rather of apprehensions by the Albanian Border Police of irregular migrants on entry, within the country, and exit. This makes dating the exact entry of arrivals difficult. According to IOM staff, for the time being, there is no evidence that due to changes in border regimes of neighboring countries, a new route through Albania could open.

Latest figures

Between 01 December 2015 - 04 April 2016, 181 migrants and refugees were apprehended by the Albanian authorities. Apprehended irregular migrants are given the possibility of applying for asylum in Albania. The alternative options for apprehended migrants are to leave the territory, or to return voluntarily to their country of nationality. The majority of irregular crossing were detected in Kakavia/ Kakavijë border crossing point with Greece. Apart from 20 migrants and refugees who were sent to the Closed Reception Centre for Irregular Migrants (in Karec), the rest were returned to Greece by the Albanian police or were asked to voluntarily return to Greece. The Albanian Border Police immediately notify IOM when an irregular migrant or group of migrants is detected.

Kosovo (SCR 1244)

Background

Kosovo (SCR 1244) has not been affected by Mediterranean migration flows due to various reasons, including its geographical position. Nevertheless, Kosovo (SCR 1244) might see an increase in flows if the route changes. The modest figures are not of registered arrivals but rather of apprehensions by the Kosovo (SCR 1244)* Border Police of irregular migrants on entry, within the country, and exit. This makes dating the exact entry of arrivals difficult.

The flows into the country for the year 2015 were as follows:

3,844 migrants were refused entry at the border of Kosovo (SCR 1244), 881 migrants and refugees were apprehended by the authorities inside Kosovo (SCR 1244), 1,008 fines were issued to irregular migrants and domestic companies for employing migrants without work visas in Kosovo (SCR 1244). Of this number, 875 were fines imposed on domestic companies for transporting and employing migrants without entry and work visas for Kosovo (SCR 1244), 73 related to migrants ordered to leave Kosovo (SCR 1244)* voluntarily, and 60 related to migrants deported by force.

In addition, 70 people requested asylum in Kosovo (SCR 1244) in 2015. The nationality breakdown of this group was: Syria – 58, Iraq – 6, Palestine – 2, Algeria – 1, Morocco – 1, Albania – 1, Iran – 1. Of these asylum seekers, 56 (82%) were male, and 14 (18%) were female, eight of these asylum seekers were children aged between 0-13, four were children aged between 14-17, 43 were young adults aged between 18-34, and five were aged between 35-64 years old.

Latest figures

As of 17 February 2016, only seven persons from this caseload were accommodated at the Magure Asylum Centre, and only two persons had been granted international protection.

14 persons (Syria – 13, Palestine – 1) entered Kosovo (SCR 1244)* in January 2016.

Known potential entry and exit points:

Known potential entry points with Serbia: Stublina, Karaqeve, Mucibabe, Merdare, Leposaviq, Zubin Potok,

Known potential entry points with the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia: Hani i Elezit, Stanqiq, Dobellde

Known potential entry points with Albania: Vermice-Prizren

Known potential entry point with Montenegro: Kulla-Peje

Montenegro

Background

Montenegro has not been affected by Mediterranean migration flows due to various reasons, including its geographical position. Nevertheless, Montenegro remains an important “contingency” country which might see an increase in flows if the route changes.

Latest figures

According to sources, since 01 March there has been one arrival from Turkey to Montenegro.

On 21 March, IOM has assisted in the return of 3 Bangladeshi nationals and 1 Algerian

Data is collected from the Asylum Directorate, Border Police, and Asylum Centre. At the end of each working day, the Asylum Directorate provides information on how many new migrants/refugees intended to seek asylum (entered Montenegro), and the Border Police share information regarding how many persons have sought asylum at the border crossings and how many migrants have been apprehended entering irregularly or within the country irregularly. Every morning IOM receives information from the Asylum Centre on the number of migrants and refugees still present in the country.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

Background

Bosnia & Herzegovina (BIH) has not been affected by Mediterranean migration flows due to various reasons, including its geographical position. The modest figures include both registered arrivals and apprehensions by the BIH Border Police of irregular migrants on entry and exit. Despite the low figures, BIH remains an important “contingency” country which might see an increase in flows if the route changes.

Apprehended irregular migrants are given the possibility of applying for asylum in BIH. The alternative options for apprehended migrants are to leave the territory or to return voluntarily to their country of nationality. The BIH Border Police supply numbers of registered and detected arrivals and exits to the country on a monthly basis.

18. About this report: DTM in the Mediterranean and beyond

IOM's Displacement Tracking Matrix (DTM) is a suite of tools and methodologies designed to track and analyse human mobility in different displacement contexts, in a continuous manner.

In order to gather and disseminate information about the migrant populations moving through the Mediterranean, up the Western Balkan Route and through the Northern Route into Europe, in September 2015 DTM established a Flow Monitoring System. The Flow Monitoring System includes this weekly flows compilation, which provides an overview of migration flows in countries of first arrival and other countries along the route in Europe, and analysis of trends across the affected region. The data on registered arrivals is collated by IOM through consultations with ministries of interior, coast guards, police forces, and other relevant national authorities.

The system also includes flow monitoring surveys to capture additional and more in-depth data on the people on the move, including age, sex, areas of origin, levels of education, key transit points on their route, motives, and intentions. This data has been captured by IOM field staff in Croatia since October 2015, with survey more recently also covering Greece, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and Slovenia. This data is analysed in the attachment accompanying this report and titled "Analysis - Flow Monitoring Surveys in the Mediterranean and Beyond".

19. About the numbers

As mentioned above, the data on registered arrivals in this report is collated by IOM through consultations with ministries of interior, coast guards, police forces, and other relevant national authorities.

As such, the German Ministry of Interior's announcement on 06 January 2016 that arrivals for 2015 had exceeded 1 million for Germany alone is unsurprising. The Ministry explained that the total number of asylum applications filed in 2015 no longer adequately represents the total number of arrivals, due to delays in the asylum application system. Instead, the Ministry referred to the number of arrivals as captured through the EASY-System, which is used to record new entrants upon arrival and determine to which federal state migrants and refugees are referred. According to the EASY-System, the numbers of arrivals in 2015 as published on the BAMF (Ministry for Migration and Asylum) website were, as of January 2016, higher than 1 million for Germany alone. These numbers indicate that there may have been a larger overall number of arrivals to Europe in 2015 than has to date been detected in countries along the route. However, it should be taken into consideration that some people might have already entered Europe in 2014 and then entered Germany in 2015; and that the Ministry and BAMF highlight that there may have been some duplications in the EASY-System.

Numbers of registered arrivals to Greece and Italy have been shown to match the data IOM has available for other countries further along the route. Nevertheless, certain types of arrival are hard to capture by date: for example, some people might have flown directly to Germany on student, tourist, or work visas, and subsequently decided to stay. Others may have travelled to Germany via Russia and northern Europe, or otherwise avoided detection along the Mediterranean and Balkans routes.
